CARDIOLOGY AT THE BIX

Friday, July 28, 2006

Radisson Quad City Plaza Davenport, Iowa

SYMPOSIUM DESCRIPTION

Cardiology at the Bix is the sixteenth annual cardiovascular symposium presented by Genesis Medical Center and the Genesis Heart Institute. An outstanding national faculty has been assembled to present a concise update on the ever-changing field of cardiovascular medicine. Emphasis is placed on assisting primary care providers in acquiring clinical insight into diagnostic and treatment modalities.

INTENDED AUDIENCE:

Internists, family practitioners, cardiologists, nurses and other health professionals who deal with cardiovascular disorders.

OBJECTIVES:

- ♥ Discuss the incidence/prevalence of ventricular tachycardia in the patient population with ischemic cardiomyopathy.
- ♥ Review NCEP ATPIII interim recommendations on lipoprotein targets based on stratified risk.
- ♥ Discuss new developments in the treatment of pulmonary hypertension.
- ♥ Discuss the principles of atherosclerosis, endothelial function, inflammation, oxidative stress, progenitor cells etc. and translation into humans.
- ♥ Evaluate patients with stroke and provide treatment options.
